TweetGrid works on a grid concept.

This is a simple 1X1 grid: 1 column x 1 row

Twitter, shown here, is the default topic.

TweetGrid searches the Twitterverse for all tweets related to Twitter and displays them here as it finds them.

Full Address contains the full URL for the grid.

To copy the link and paste it somewhere else, right-click the link and select "Copy Shortcut" (in Internet Explorer).

You can then paste it in an e-mail or any other form of text communication.

Additionally, you can drag it up to the Favorites menu and add the URL to your bookmarks.

When you click on Tweet it, it puts text in the Tweet text box. You can then enter more text, enter you User Id and Password, then click on Tweet!

TweetGrid then tweets your text.

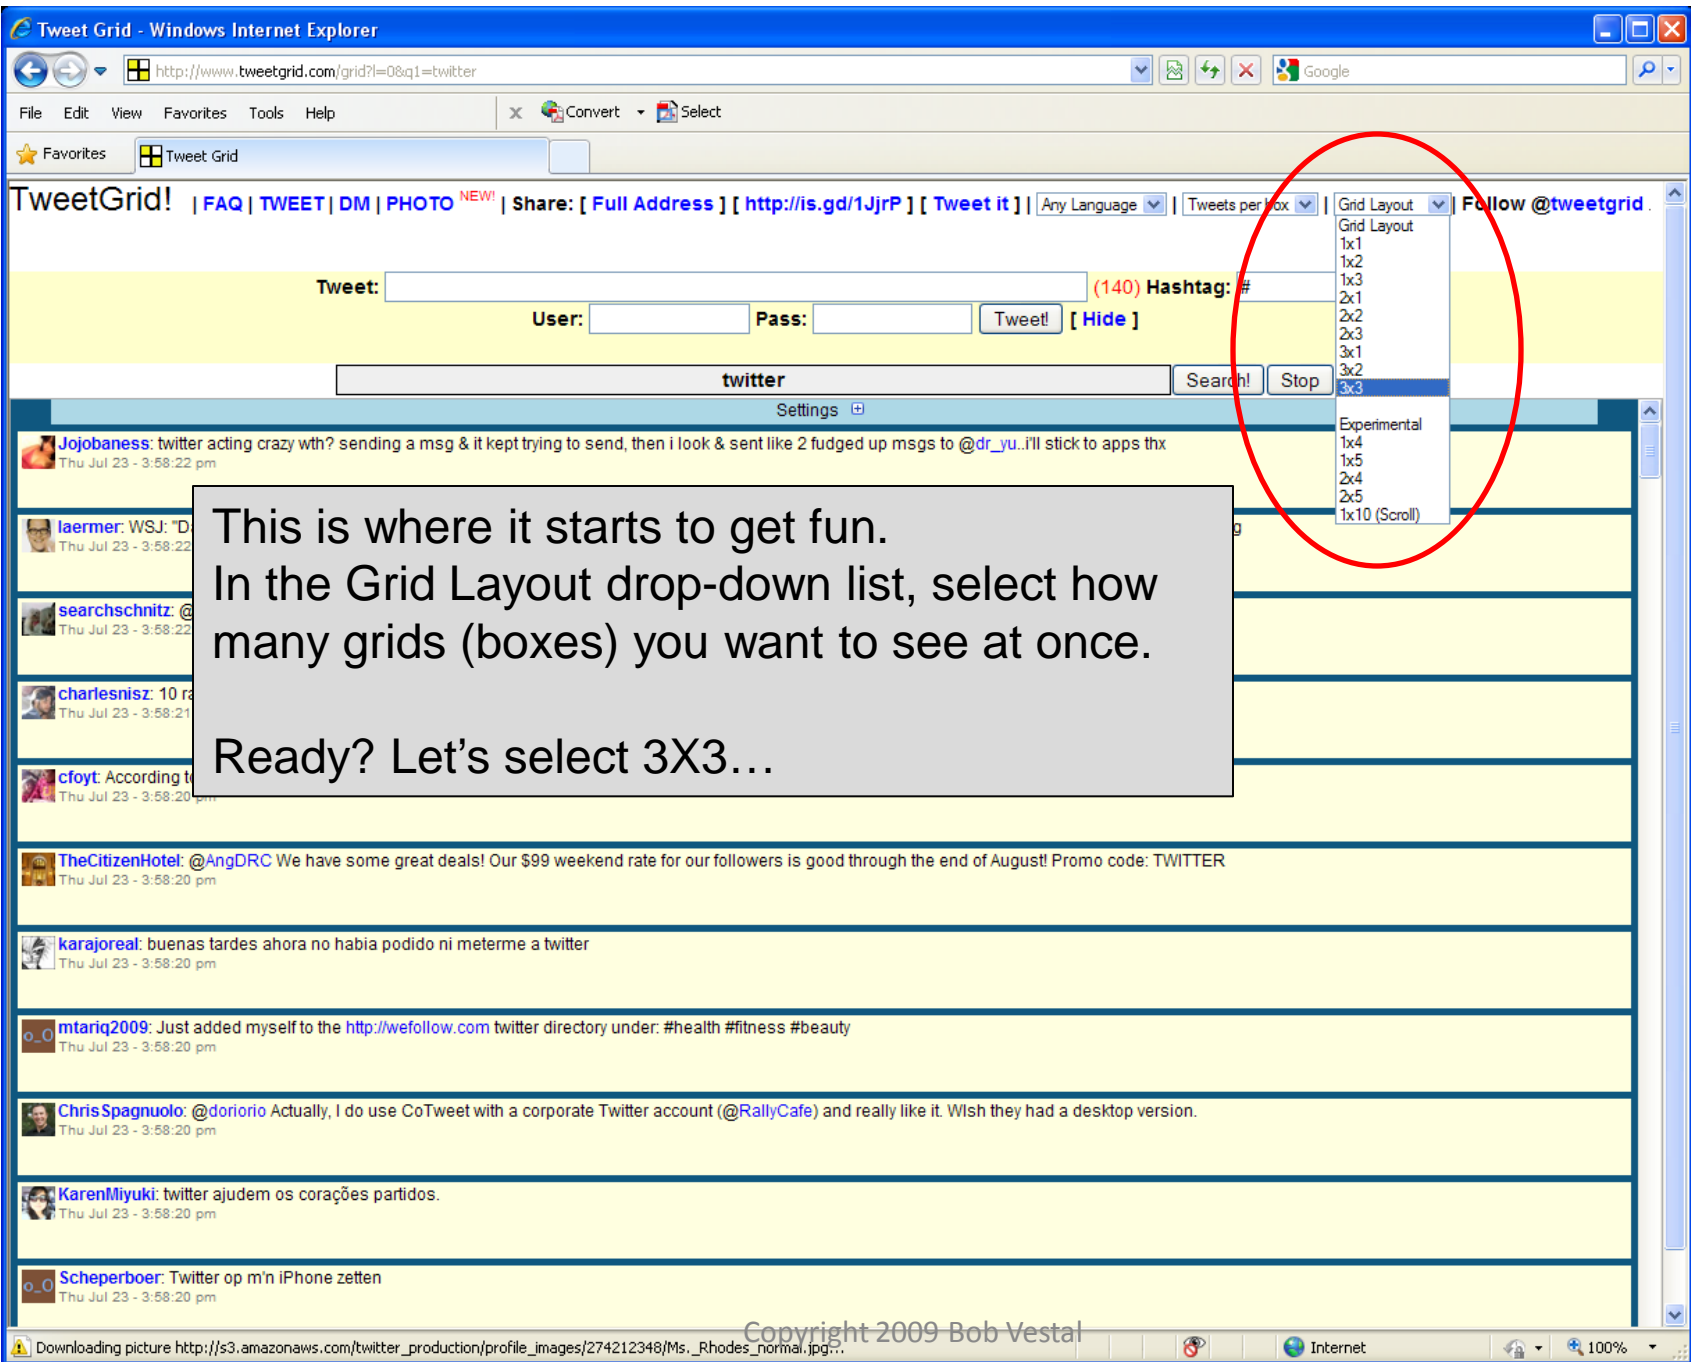

Hashtag is fun.

If you want to use a hashtag over and over in multiple tweets, just enter it here once and all your subsequent tweets will contain that hastag.

TweetGrid even includes it in the character count for you automatically.

This drop-down list lets you select how many tweets you want to display in each grid box.

This is where it starts to get fun.
In the Grid Layout drop-down list, select how many grids (boxes) you want to see at once.
Ready? Let's select 3X3...

Told you it was scary. And, it gets worse! Or, better depending on your connection.

As you can see, you now have a 3X3 grid available to monitor tweets on whatever subject warms your heart.

Let's search for some tweets...

You can search on whatever text, topic, or tweet you want just by typing that in the text box of each cell and clicking on Search.

- To: [input field] 140
- Message: [text area]
- From: [input field]
- Password: [input field]
- Keep DM Box open after send
- Send DM

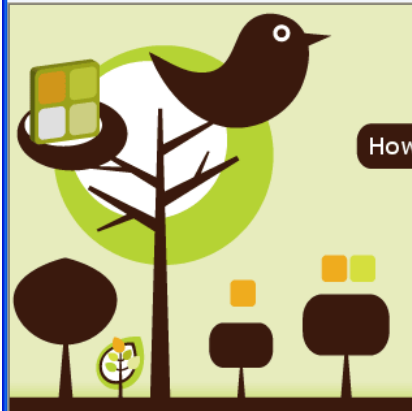

A callout box on the right contains the text: "DM opens a new window so you can send a Direct Message to another twit."

TWEET does the same thing the two other Tweet links do: let's you tweet from TweetGrid.

FAQ is just what you think it is: a list of common questions and answers.
